Cruel twist of fate

Paralyzed from the neck down after a branch struck him in the back during last summer's violent storm, Lyn Moers and his wife, Sharon, are trying to put the pieces back in their lives. But the Westland couple will need $30,000 for a rehabilitation program in Colorado. Moers has been bedridden at Wayne County General Hospital since the July 16 storm. Staff members will hold a benefit 10,000 meter run to help raise funds for Moers. That event will take place on WCGH grounds Saturday at 9:30 a.m. There is a $6 registration fee. Photo by Donald Green.

Storm victim needs $30,000

Left a quadriplegic by last summer's killer storm, Lyn Moers will need $30,000 to enter a rehabilitation center in Englewood, Colo.

Moers suffered the injury July 16 when a branch struck him behind the head, paralyzing him. The 30-year-old Westland man who is at Wayne County General Hospital has to come up with the money so that he can be admitted to the Craig Hospital in Colorado, a hospital which specializes in the treatment of quadri and paraplegics.

On Saturday, a benefit 10,000 meter run will be staged to help raise some of the funds for Moers's treatment.

"We'll hold the race right here on the hospital grounds," said James Rawlinson, a member of the WCGH medical staff. "Lyn is going to need about $30,000 to be admitted into Craig Hospital but he'll need about $80,000 for the complete treatment."

Rawlinson said the benefit race will begin at 9:30 a.m., and that runners should check in at 8:30 a.m. There is a $6 registration fee which will go into the fund.

Father Walter Burke, who has spearheaded the fund-raising drive, pointed out that persons who wish to donate may do so by sending their donations to St. Camillus Church, c/o Lyn Moers's Benefit. The checks should be made out to St. Camillus and should specify it is for the Moers's fund, for tax reasons.

The donations are tax-deductible if the checks are made out to the church.

Father Burke and Rawlinson may be reached by telephoning 722-2500.

Romulus Tower ready to open

Time is running out for Romulus senior citizens who wish to live in the new Romulus Towers apartment building nearing completion at Bibbins and Shook Streets in Romulus.

At least that's the word from David Sklar, son of the developer of the $4,000,000 housing complex.

According to Sklar, only half of the 125 units in the Romulus Tower have been rented to date. With a Nov. 1, 1980 opening date set, that doesn't leave much time for Romulus residents who want to qualify for residence.

To qualify, a person (head of household) must be 62 years of age or disabled and make less than $13,600 (or $15,500 for two persons) per year.

If those guidelines are met, rent will be approximately 25 percent of a person's yearly income.

If a senior's income exceeds those amounts, they may still apply for residence, but will have to pay a fair market rent, which for a one bedroom apartment will amount to $413 per month.

Wingate Management corporation, an arm of the development company, operates 10 similar complexes throughout metropolitan Detroit, including the Wayne Towers and Garden City Towers.

Each one of these buildings, ranging in size from six to 12 floors and housing between 150 and 200 people, have waiting lists that number 1,400 for the Garden City complex and 500 for the Wayne Towers.

The Romulus Tower contains six floors divided into 105 one bedroom units, 12 two bedroom apartments and eight handicapped units. The complex is designed to use barrier free access, a security system which includes a single entrance from the outside, TV camera surveillance, a sophisticated call and fire alarm system, and a well-lighted parking lot.

The first floor will have many public amenities, including a library-reading room, arts and

County warns city it'll not extend police services

Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley told city council last week that he had been notified that the Wayne County Board of Commissioners had voted to extend police protection services to the city until Dec. 1, 1980.

However, Oakley said, he was told that no more extensions would be granted after that date. Police protection is provided by the county sheriff's department under a contract between city and county.

But, Romulus and the county have been unable to agree on terms for a new contract and only several extensions given by the county board has permitted continuation of police services to the city.

Making matters worse is the inability of the city and county to agree upon how much Romulus owes the county for overdue payments.

The city also contends that the county in the past never submitted documented and detailed bills.

Last week, it was announced that the county Board of Auditors had recommended to the Board of Commissioners that all patrol and investigation (P&I) services performed by the sheriff's department be eliminated.

In addition to various types of police service, the cut would include contractual services provided by the sheriff's department to Romulus and townships of Brownstown and Plymouth.

Also hard hit would be unincorporated communities such as Van Buren Township which have no police or only part-time volunteer police officers. These areas currently are patrolled by the sheriff's department and their services supplement local law enforcement.

Sheriff William Lucas and his undersheriff, Loren Pittman, blasted the Board of Auditors' recommendation.

The sheriff said he was not consulted prior to the recommendation. He said the recommendation did not take into account that many of the P&I services are partially or totally paid for by the state.

The county Board of Commissioners is expected to take up budget matters, one of which is the P&I issue, during October and November.

City pays for sewage plan study

Although not sure where it will get the money, Romulus City Council last week approved spending $23,000 to pay its share of a facility planning study of the downriver sewage disposal system.

Romulus's share of the $138,000 cost of the study to be performed by Wade, Trim & Associates would be 20 percent, while the state will pay 5 percent and the federal government the balance of 75 percent.

The study, it was explained by Glen Roberts of Wade, Trim and Associates, will identify pollution problems in sanitary sewers, septic tanks and surface drains and streams and investigate possible overcharges by Wayne County for sewage disposal.

Participation in the facility planning study is necessary for Romulus if it seeks to remain eligible for further state or federal funds for future EPA projects within the city.

Mayor William M. Oakley recommended that council approve the city's participation in the facility planning study.

Councilman Ed Rush questioned where the city would get the $23,000 for the study.

Oakley replied, "We'll look for it when the time comes."

Rush stressed that funds for the study should have been budgeted and to amend a passage motion to state where funds could come from.

Councilman Ray Cantrell said he believed funds for the study were available in the escrow account of the water and sewer department.

In other action, council approved a resolution supporting a plan and strategy for the revitalization of the downtown business district developed by the Romulus Central

DetRo asks for site change

By BOBAMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus residents irate over a Detroit firm's plans to build a sludge recovery plant in one of the least desirable sections of their community now face the prospect of having one immediately adjacent to city hall.

DetRo Recovery presented a "rough" preliminary site plan for such a plant on 36.88 acres of land immediately east of the city hall before a special meeting of the city Planning Commission. The land is currently zoned M-2 heavy industrial.

Hyle Carmichael, the city's industrial coordinator, said the Planning Commission tabled action on DetRo's request pending receipt of additional information from the company.

Immediately prior to the Planning Commission meeting, DetRo appeared before a special meeting of the city Board of Appeals. The company contested a recommendation made by the Planning Commission to the Board of Appeals which held that the M-1 light industrial zoning for some 133 acres wanted by DetRo for a plant site was not appropriate for the sludge recovery operation.

However, the Board of Appeals voted to concur with the Planning Commission recommendation and ruled against DetRo's request. Previously, the Planning Commission had ruled that a sludge recovery operation would require an M-2 heavy industrial zoning classification.

The 133-acre site previously pushed by DetRo is located west of the C & O Railroad and south of Ecorse Road. About 40 acres of the total proposed site is now occupied by Mendrek's Commercial Dump.

A standing room only audience was present at both meetings Thursday.

According to Carmichael, public sentiment was almost 100 percent against location of a sludge recovery plant in Romulus. The same anti-sludge recovery plant feelings were expressed by a boisterous large audience about a month ago at meetings on the DetRo plant held on the same night by the Planning Commission and the City Council.

Some city officials believe DetRo's latest move to build a plant next to city hall is a bluff to force the community to approve its first larger site. However none wished to go on record as saying so.

Emphasized was the fact that the site east of city hall is only a little more than one-fourth as large as the first site proposed by DetRo.

Since the smaller land parcel next to city hall already is zoned M-2, the zoning required for sludge recovery operation, DetRo conceivably would have less opposition legally to build its plant, according to the city officials who wish to remain unidentified.

With the knowledge that city officials and almost all city residents would be adamantly against plant construction next to the modern civic center complex, DetRo would be in a good bargaining position to force acceptance on its larger proposed site at Ecorse and the railroad.

Ghosts, Sloop Cemetery history

By KATHY HORSTE
Van Buren Historian

The fall season goes hand in hand with thoughts of Halloween and its accompanying goblins and ghosts.

Perhaps now is an appropriate time to reflect on the history of the final resting place for many of Van Buren Township's pioneers... Sloop Cemetery.

Settlers came to Van Buren Township beginning in the early 1820's. The first to come were usually men, who selected a homestead, then traveled to the county seat to register their claims.

In due time, the men sent home for their wives and children, thus establishing the more traditional family life.

These families faced almost unbelievable hardships in the Michigan wilderness, and troubled times often brought an early end to young lives.

Those who died here from 1822 to 1832 were simply buried in shallow graves near the doors of their log cabin homes. These deaths were unrecorded except in the family bible, which simply gave the date of death along with the brief notation "buried in the dooryard."

The first public burying ground was established in Van Buren Township in 1832, by Abraham Sloop, assisted by his friends David Dalrymple and Amariah Rawson.

Compromise

Resident, council duel over rezoning

A Romulus resident's attempt to get the city council to commit itself on zoning of city-owned land he wanted to buy and improve evoked considerable discussion before a compromise was worked out.

Larry Coke appeared at last week's council session and asked council about rezoning the Golden Hall property on the northwest corner of Wayne Road and Vinewood from commercial to industrial.

Golden Hall years ago was rented out for special meetings and was located across the street from a salvage and wrecking operation operated by John Golden, who owned both businesses.

Although Coke could not get council to commit itself to a change in zoning, it did agree with a suggestion by Mayor William M. Oakley. The Mayor said Coke should be advised to submit a bid on Golden Hall with conditions that would suit his plans.

Coke had previously told council he wanted to remodel the property and transform it into an automobile repair shop. He explained that he needed an industrial zoning classification for that purpose; otherwise the building and land would be of no use to him, he said.

In earlier discussion, Councilman Jimmie Raspberry urged that Golden Hall should be sold as is and that zoning on the property was "specific." He said only the owner of the land could petition for a zoning change.

Clerk Leonard J. Folmar said the issue was a special case since the property is owned by the city and that council could give Coke an indication of its feeling on the matter.

Coke told council that the property had been idle for 34 years and would take a lot of work and money to renovate.

"It would take my life's savings to make the building look presentable," explained Coke. However, he added, the finished remodeling and landscaping would make the property something the city would be proud of.

Treasurer Beverly McAnally said she would like to see the property back on the tax rolls. (The city acquired the property years ago for non-payment of taxes.)

"In all fairness," said the treasurer, "can't someone on council give (Coke) some encouragement?"

Folmar questioned why the council could not take steps to find out what could be done to change the zoning.

At this point, Oakley recommended to Coke that he consult with his attorney and possibly submit his bid on the property with his own conditions.

Raspberry interjected to say that he disagreed with the mayor because the notices for sale of the property had already been published. He added that permitting conditions to be put into bids could lead to spot zoning.

Oakley replied that it was Coke's prerogative to put whatever conditions he wanted to in his bid to buy the Golden Hall property.

Councilman Ed Rush asked Charles Lowther, city attorney, for his opinion at the same time that Raspberry asked the attorney if bid specifications could be changed.

Lowther said it was his opinion that bids could be submitted by prospective buyers in any fashion.

Banks advised Coke that he and any other bidders could submit their bids with their own conditions and that council could either accept or reject them.

Coke said he planned to submit a bid. The city is asking that a minimum bid of $15,000 be offered by bidders on the property.

Open house

Huron High School Administrators hosted an open house for parents of new tuition students and students new to the district.

Twenty-eight families were invited to the informal coffee hour to discuss topics of interest and become acquainted with teachers, counselors and administrators.

Curtis D. Bartz, Huron Superintendent, spoke to the parents concerning questions on the district level while the principal Jon W. Stevens discussed school level inquiries.

'Nobody loses'

New Boston Huron's golf team had a thrilling experience recently when 12 linksmen travelled to Middleville (near Grand Rapids) for a weekend tourney with Thornapple-Kellogg High School. Making the trip a special delight was the fact that the Chiefs played the best golf of their young careers to beat a team, 344-351, which has been to the state championship two years in a row. Coach Charles Unseld (far right) said: "How can there be a golf tournament where nobody loses? Well, the Huron Chiefs played in one recently and it has been a real treat for the past 12 years to take our teams for a weekend tourney to play

He said that although MSHDA (Michigan State Housing Development Authority) regulations forbid choosing potential renters on the basis of where they live Wingate will give preference to Romulus residents, when possible, initially.

Any Romulus resident who believes he or she may qualify for residency in the Romulus Towers should call Mary Messenger or Jean Smith at 422-2500 to make application.

At last week's city council meeting, Councilman Ray Cantrell said the city of Manistee experienced similar problems when it opened a senior citizen housing development. He said response for occupancy by local seniors was poor and the building had to be filled with non-local tenants.

Later, Cantrell said, when the building was full, local seniors wanted to move in but were too late.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry suggested that Mayor William M. Oakley direct Jay Young, public information officer, to send a letter to all senior citizens on the waiting list informing them of the opening date and the urgency for them to apply for occupancy.

According to Marilyn Masters, senior citizens coordinator for the city, some 350 Romulus seniors were on the waiting list as of Thursday. That day, special arrangements were made for local seniors to be brought to the senior drop-in center to make applications for occupancy to Romulus Towers.

Prior to Thursday, 67 persons had been tentatively approved for occupancy from the entire list, she said.

The bulk of the balance of local seniors on the list were disqualified primarily because their incomes were too high, she explained.

Council holds off demolishing house

The owner of a house scheduled for demolition by the city was turned down last week by Romulus City Council on his request for a 60-day extension to permit him to tear it down himself.

Instead, council approved a motion by Councilman Junior Block that directed Joe Wadzyk, owner of the building, to work out an agreement with the city building department.

Block supported a recommendation by Mayor William M. Oakley who felt that Wadzyk had sufficient time to demolish the house since its purchase.

Wadzyk admitted to Block that he had appeared previously before council for an extension to renovate the house. Since then, the owner explained, he had been told by a contractor that the building was too badly run down to repair.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry said he believed Wadzyk should give the city a bond or some other guarantee to his intentions to demolish the structure.

Block said Wadzyk knew that the house was scheduled for demolition by the city for some time.

Oakley said previous owners of the house on at least three occasions had been given extensions on the house's demolition, but nothing had ever been done.

The house owned by Wadzyk is located at 35025 Wick Rd. and was one of several contained in a group which the city had slated for demolition soon.

Cong. Ford vs. Carlson

NOTE: With the November general election (Nov. 4) less than a month away, Associated Newspapers Inc., in an effort to inform its readers of the candidates for Congressional, state and county positions, will be publishing candidate comparisons. The surveys will provide the backgrounds of the various candidates, as well as what they feel are the issues in their respective campaigns.

Our first comparison is for the 15th Congressional District in which incumbent William D. Ford is being challenged by Gerald R. Carlson.

Well-known and highly touted in his districts for his efforts on behalf of education at the federal level, incumbent Congressman William D. Ford sees inflation, unemployment and full utilization of industrial capacity as the issues in his campaign for a ninth term in Congress.

His challenger, Gerald R. Carlson, views the federal government as out of control in its policies promoting "radical liberal, permissive development which is harmful to our country." His campaign for election is based on a belief in white supremacy.

An unknown, Carlson at age 38 is making his first bid for election to the U.S. Congress. A 1960 graduate of Fordson High School in Dearborn, Carlson has a bachelor of science degree in political science from the University of Michigan.

He also has studied at universities in Sweden and Germany. A life-long resident of the 15th Congressional District, the candidate also has worked for six years in factories and shops as an electrician.

He feels a combination of his educational background and experiences as a skilled laborer provides him with a broad understanding of the problems of residents of the 15th District.

Business District Association, and recommended that the city Planning Commission adopt the plan as the official planning document for the downtown district.

The RCBA has been working on the plan for the last two years. Approval of the plan by the city council does not bind the city to any financial commitments.

With Councilman Jimmie Raspberry abstaining and Rush voting no, council voted 4-2 to award the repair work on the city's Fiat-Allis end-loader to the Earle Equipment Co. of Romulus.

Although Earle's estimate of $15,000 was somewhat higher than the bid of $13,271.41 submitted by Construction Equipment, the mayor recommended Earle because it was a local business and because repairs and parts would be easier to obtain.

The mayor said the end-loader was badly needed now with brush cleanup from the July storm "only a couple of days away."

Again, Rush questioned the extra cost in giving the repair work to Earle. Oakley said the award was not a bid, only an estimate of repairs, and that he believed Earle would be cheaper in the long run.

"As U.S. Congressman, I will do everything within my power to protect the rights of the members of the white majority," Carlson concluded.

The candidate plans to spend only $1,000 on his campaign for election.

Ford, a resident of Taylor for 47 years, has served in Congress since 1965. Married, he and his wife Martha have three children — William Jr., 32, Margaret, 29, and John, 26.

A graduate of Melvindale High School, Ford attended the Henry Ford Trade School, Wayne State University and the University of Denver. He holds a bachelor of arts degree and received his juris doctor from the University of Denver in 1961. He has been awarded honorary doctorates from Wayne State, Northern Michigan and Eastern Michigan universities, as well as Grand Valley State College and Westfield (Mass.) College.

A practicing attorney from 1952 to 1964, Ford served as city attorney for Melvindale (1957-59), as a Justice of the Peace in Taylor (1955-57) and as that community's city attorney (1957-64). He also was a delegate to the Michigan Constitutional Convention (1961-62) and served in the State Senate (1963-64).

He has been active in the Taylor Rotary Club, serving as its president in 1960; the Downriver Bar Association, serving as its president in 1961-61; and the Taylor Jaycees of which he was a charter member in 1957.

Ford also is affiliated with the Masons, Shriners, Moose, Eagles, American Legion, Amvets and Elks.

A veteran of the U.S. Navy, serving from 1944 to 1946, he also served in the U.S. Air Force Reserve from 1950 to 1953.

He has received numerous awards from educational, labor, conservation, consumer and veteran groups, including being named the Outstanding Young Man of the Year in Taylor in 1962.

Ford, who spent $20,000 in the primary election to win the Democrat nod, plans to spend about $30,000 in the general election. He also will be seeking endorsements for his re-election bid from local Democratic clubs and labor unions on the local, state and national levels.

Well-known for his work in House committees and sub-committees dealing with education, Ford has tagged inflation, unemployment and the full use of the country's industrial capacity as issues in his re-election campaign.

He feels that "we must continue our efforts to reduce unnecessary federal spending and to provide jobs for every American willing and able to work."

It is through those two areas that the government must work in order to "attack all three problems," he feels.

Joyner asks probe of 'Meals-at-Home'

A confidential report obtained by Wayne County Commissioner R. William Joyner (D-Plymouth) documenting instances of senior citizen meals being sold on street corners and meals being delivered to seniors who have been dead for months, was released today together with a demand by the commissioner for a full hearing and investigation by the county's Human Resources Committee.

The documented report was prepared by the Detroit Deputy Health Director George Gaines and based on evidence obtained by JoAnne Klocke, in charge of Detroit's Meals-At-Home Program, in the communities of Highland Park, Hamtramck, Harper Woods, Grosse Pointes, and Detroit.

The six-page report, which intentionally omitted names of witnesses "to protect them from possible repercussions," dealt mainly with the delivery staff of Wayne

County's meals on Wheels program, its violation of federal guidelines in ascertaining the eligibility of seniors in order to obtain their meals, deficiencies in the programs audit reports, inadequate controls over collections and improper handling of OSA (Office of Service to the Aging) advance payments.

Detroit assumed administration of the program October 1 after separating from the joint Detroit-Wayne County Area Office on Aging earlier this year. A consortium of 34 out-county communities has been ordered to split that area's nutrition programs with the county's office on aging for 90 days until further hearings can be completed.

Dante DiVitto has been Acting Director of the County program for the past year and Director since its inception seven years ago.

Joyner, upon releasing the report, also submitted a letter to Samuel Turner, Chairman of the County Board of Commissioners, requesting a full investigation by the Human Resources Committee to determine whether the report was accurate.

The document, preceding each charge, itemizes state and federal requirements and then spells out the actual eye-witness activities of route-drivers in making their deliveries to senior citizens too house-ridden to prepare or buy their meals elsewhere. (Route drivers, additionally, are to report back to the main office if seniors, for any reasons, are unable to take delivery of their meals.)

Reports indicate that not only didn't the route drivers report on the situation of the seniors, but worse, sold the meals on the street for whatever they could get.

Some drivers even charged seniors living on second-third and fourth floors and unable to meet the driver on the ground floor "extra" delivery charges.

The federal government's regulations setting forth the criteria for home-delivered meals require: the senior be 60 years or older, home-bound, unable to participate in congregate nutrition programs where food is served at a specific site, physically or emotionally unable to prepare food, no adults living in the same building or able and willing to prepare all meals, and those with special dietary needs.

According to Detroit investigators, caterers were sending 255 double meals to the Hamtramck, Highland Park project yet 273 people received the meals. Each delivery consists of one hot and one cold lunch. The report said they couldn't imagine 273 people getting 255 deliveries and decided at that time to make a determination.

The investigators, composed of Detroit nutrition staff members, found that none of the seniors had been assessed that, in one case, 22 meals were dropped off at one building with six people some who had died several months earlier and others not eligible for home meals.

Staff members said they caught one driver in the street collecting whatever he could for the meals.

The report continues: Recipients (seniors) said they were told if they didn't pay they would no longer receive meals — meals are to be paid on a voluntary basis-one driver held out his hand when making one delivery and without saying a word folded money was placed in his hand. From our observation a great deal of money was collected and was not turned into the office.

"We found meals had been delivered and left to collect bugs, some meals had been piled on top of other uncollected meals with no report to the office. One recipient was seen paying a dollar for a peanut butter sandwich and milk.

The report concludes that the findings indicate non-compliance with State Regulations and lack of adequate monitoring and enforcement by both the out-county grantee and State Office on Aging.

In a separate letter from Peter Kok, Director of the State Office of Service to the Aging to DiVitto, Kok said his auditors have determined that the actual deficit of the program is $24,248 and cited the following deficiencies: Inadequate accounting system, central records do not agree with the fiscal report, inadequate control over the collection of program income and improper handling of OSA advance payments.

He also requested corrective action in monitoring and an alternative accounting arrangement for the next fiscal year. In another letter Kok said they had not received a response from DiVitto concerning the audit report.

Ghosts, goblins and Soop Cemetery's history

Abraham Soop came to the township from Seneca, New York, in 1932, bringing his wife and large family with him. He eventually purchased over a square mile of farmland in the general area of what is now known as the Lemon Tree Complex. Soop was quick to become involved in community life — helping to establish schools, churches and even the government — serving as the township's first elected official.

He also saw a need for the township's first elected official.

He also saw a need for a cemetery, and generously gave a portion of his own land to the township for that purpose.

Abraham Soop died June 25, 1841, when his team of horses bolted, throwing him to the ground. He died of injuries sustained in the fall and was buried in the cemetery he created.

The name of the Soop Cemetery has long been a center of controversy and debate. For over a century, wry village humorists referred to those buried in the Soop Cemetery as "being in the Soop." This attempt at humor often offended the relatives of the deceased, and periodic efforts were made to change the cemetery's name.

In 1952, the Soop Cemetery Association voted to change the name, first to Lakeview, and then to Pleasantview.

At the time of the second change, a large granite marker was erected in the center of the cemetery to commemorate Soop's gift. The name controversy was officially resolved 142 years after it began when the township formally adopted the name Soop Cemetery earlier this year.

The older section of Soop Cemetery has many tall, old-fashioned tombstones, some of which have stood for so long that they can no longer be read. Several Revolutionary War soldiers are buried there — among them Abner Rawson, the father of Amariah Rawson, the founder of the Village of Rawsonville and one of the men who helped to create Soop Cemetery.

The Civil War took its toll among Michigan men, and township cemeteries are dotted with their graves. Two markers of this period in Soop Cemetery are especially interesting because they mark the passing of soldiers who are not actually buried in the graves they mark:

of what you soon must be.
When you unto my grave do go,
That gloomy place to see,
Think solemnly what you must do,

and be my company.
A great deal of Van Buren Township's history lies sleeping within the boundaries of Soop Cemetery. It is kept in good repair by the township that owns it, and relatives and researchers alike find it an interesting place to visit. Lots may still be purchased from the Township Clerk's office.

4-H'ers have a successful auction

The Wayne County Livestock Auction enjoyed another successful year. Fifty buyers participated in the 4th annual 4-H livestock auction held at the Wayne County Fairgrounds in Belleville. With ninety-five animals being sold, Dawn Grimms champion steer was bought by Huron Sod Farm in Romulus. Mary Carpenter had the grand champion hogs (above) and the buyer was Ypsilanti Farm Bureau Ypsilanti. Grand champion lamb belonged to Tiffany Rae with L&M Packing from Monroe winding up as the buyer. The livestock committee has a new sponsorship program which was a success this year and will be available again next year. A banquet was held for the buyers, sponsors and members at which 180 enjoyed an evening together.

Pets and Animals

Parakeets as pets

By STANLEY E. BARTKIEWICZ, D.V.M.

Parakeets are small, active, colorful, easily kept pets that usually make good companions.

With patience and persistence, both male and female parakeets can learn to mimic the human voice. Their care is minimal with daily feeding and watering and a semi-weekly or weekly cage cleaning.

Parakeets are comfortably housed in metal, barred cages. Wooden cages should be avoided because of the difficulties in thoroughly cleaning them. Cleaning can be done with soap and water taking care to remove all of the soap residue.

Clean shelving paper is a good covering for the bottom of the cage. Newspapers, especially the colored sections, should be avoided because of the possibility of a toxicity reaction should your parakeet eat the paper.

Perches should be made of various size dowel rods to allow the parakeet to exercise its legs and wear down its nails. Sand paper perches should not be used because the coarseness is too rough on the parakeet's feet.

The cage should be placed in a draft-free area out of direct sunlight and covered at nightfall. It is a good idea to keep your parakeet's cage in a room other than the one used for family television viewing. The noise of the television, either early in the morning or late in the evening, can cause your bird to get very little rest.

Let your bird adjust to its new surroundings for at least one to two weeks before letting it out of the cage. It will naturally be frightened so work with it slowly. Your pet may fly into windows without realizing the glass is there. To prevent your parakeet from getting hurt, keep blinds or drapes pulled over large clear windows while out of its cage.

Feeding your parakeet commercial bird seed is fine, but it should be supplemented with either powder or liquid vitamins. The powder vitamins may be placed in a separate seed cup to allow the bird to eat it as needed. The liquid vitamins may be placed in the water or on the food. If you choose to place the vitamins in the water, be sure that your parakeet is consuming the water.

Gravel should also be supplied in a separate seed cup. If the gravel is spread out on the floor of the cage instead of in the cup, the bird will contaminate the gravel with its droppings.

Teaching a parakeet to talk can be frustrating, but don't give up! To teach your parakeet to talk, isolate it from other parakeets. Speak slowly, repeating one word over and over. By speaking to your parakeet several times during the day, you will reinforce the word you are trying to teach.

Give your pet toys and a mirror for some companionship. Birds will try to feed the mirror and regurgitate food onto it. This is a normal behavior and there is no need for alarm.

With proper care and a little good luck, your pet parakeet may live for ten years.

Journey to Middle East

Area woman visits occupied West Bank

Mrs. Alice Russow, of 37635 Greenwood Drive, has just returned from a two-week trip overseas that included a visit to the Middle East.

She was traveling with a group of people who support a Christian mission that helps needy Arab refugees on the Occupied West Bank.

The Holy Land Christian Mission International has an 18-building complex in Bethlehem that ministers to the physical and spiritual needs of Arab orphans, crippled children, widows and destitute families in the area.

The Mission, which has its American headquarters in Kansas City, Mo., is supported by contributions from American donors, along with grants from the U.S. Agency for International Development.

In addition to visiting the Mission, Mrs. Russow spent two days touring Rome and a day touring Petra, an ancient city carved out of rock.

UHT Funeral Home

THE FUNERAL IS OVER, WHAT MORE CAN I DO?

When someone we are close to loses a loved one we offer them comfort and hope by attending the wake and funeral services. These activities are very helpful because a period of grieving is needed as an emotional outlet. They help the survivors to accept the deceased's death through the presence of friends and relatives.

But, a feeling of emptiness often follows when those closest to the deceased are back home alone after the formalities are over. You might ask yourself "now that the funeral is over, what more can I do to help?"

In his book, Death and Dying, Leonard Pearson suggests two things:

1. It is necessary for the bereaved to have some time alone to think and finish the grieving process.

2. At the same time, frequent-and-short-visits from friends and relatives are in order... especially visits which encourage the bereaved to take part in some activity they enjoy.

Pearson also says that we should visit in the spirit of real friendship for the bereaved and not just because they have lost a loved one. People want our love, not our pity. We invite you to consult us for books and articles on this and other related subjects.

Jackson spoils Romulus' Homecoming, 31-6

A Jackson Lumen Christi football team, which has dedicated the season to coach Jim Crowley, invaded Romulus Friday afternoon and crushed the Eagles 33-6, spoiling Romulus' homecoming celebration.

Jackson grabbed a 7-0 first quarter advantage and turned it into a 21-0 halftime lead before scoring twice in the third quarter and coasting to the non-conference victory.

Romulus averted the shutout in the fourth quarter when quarterback Marty Knight tossed a 5-yard, touchdown pass to Mark Schick which culminated a 67-yard four play drive. The drive also featured another Knight-to-Schick reception of 27 yards. Knight picked up a 26-yard gainer in that short series.

Jackson has dedicated the 1980 season to Jim Crowley, its former coach who was murdered last summer in an apparent robbery attempt.

Although disappointed by the loss, Romulus coach Don Foley said he felt that his team played well in spots.

"The kids played with a lot of heart and effort," Coach Foley commented. "I really felt that we didn't play a bad game despite the lopsided score."

Romulus had an early opportunity to get on the scoreboard when the Eagles recovered the opening kickoff on the Jackson 30-yard line.

However, Romulus couldn't move against the stubborn Jackson defense and gave up the ball via a punt. Schick managed to down the ball on the enemy's one-yard line. But Jackson immediately got out of the hole thanks to a 15-yard face mask penalty, and Jackson drove the length of the field and scored on Tim Schonhard's two-yard sprint. Quarterback Jason Scomer went on to pass for touchdowns of 11 and 22 yards to Andy Soltis in the second quarter and he also scored from eight yards in the third quarter.

Jackson racked up a total of 335 yards, 217 of them on the ground. The Eagle offensive machine churned out 190 yards - 40 on the ground and 150 yards on Knight's 15 of 23 passing attack. Schick caught 8 of those passes for 87 yards and a TD. He has now hauled in 37 passes for a total of 360 yards and three TDs.

Knight has been on target for 77 of 148 passes for a season total of 717 yards and three TDs.

Capt. Randy Champaign returned to the line-up after an injury and was credited with six solo tackles and two assists, while John Holifield picked up six unassisted and an equal number of assists.

Romulus will travel to Oak Park Friday afternoon in hopes on snapping a three-game losing streak.

3. Discussion

4. Adjournment

Roll call vote showing: Ayes - Raspberry, Cantrell, Block, Yeramian, Rush, Banks. Nays - None. Motion carried.

HISTORY:

Due to the new requirements of CETA, some eleven (11) employees under the program will be terminated effective September 30, 1980. Said employees petitioned the City Council at the regular meeting held September 23, 1980, at which time questions regarding their status and possible actions council might take to absorb them as permanent employees, were raised. Subsequently, City Council scheduled the aforementioned workshop to review and discuss possible alternative funding for said employees within the 1980-81 General Fund Budget, and to consider adoption of said budget.

Councilman Cantrell, opened the discussion by inquiring as to whether the 10 percent Water and Sewer increase was included in the Budget; and questioned whether the $900,000 deficit would be wiped out in this budget.

Richard Sullivan, Finance Director, responded that the Water and Sewer increase was included in the budget, and that the budget would provide for payoff of the $900,000, 79-80 deficit. He further explained that the aforementioned deficit was a projected figure, i.e., estimated, therefore an actual 80-81 deficit figure could not be provided at this time.

Alternative funding suggestions raised by City Council (i.e. for CETA Employees) were: use of fund presently allocated for the Administrative Assistant to the Mayor position (will be vacant as of September 29, 1980); the Public Information Officer position; and a decrease in funding for City Attorney fees.

Councilmen Raspberry: Felt that since John Shea, Administrative Assistant to the Mayor was leaving and since employees were being laid-off, that position should be eliminated; this would provide for possible funding for CETA employees. Mr. Raspberry, also felt that it was unfair that only the lower echelawn employees were being effected by the lay-off, and stressed that previous Mayor's for the City of Romulus had not enjoyed the benefits of having an administrative assistant.

Mayor responded that in order to serve the public more effectively an assistant was needed, further that, John also served as Coordinator for the Water Department as well as filing in on numerous other positions, when needed. The Mayor further explained that at this time he had no prospects for that position, it requiring a very special type of person; but his intent would be to fill same at some later date.

Councilmen Raspberry: asked if the Elected Officials would be willing to postpone their raise in salary, until such time as the financial condition of the City had improved.

The general consensus of the elected officials was that they would be willing to postpone the aforementioned raise in salary, as they had done to date. (Said raise will remain reflected in the 1980-81 General Fund Budget)

The Mayor further responded that there was less 'fat' in the Budget than there had been in past years; in fact, he could not see any 'fat' in this Budget. Hewent on to explain, that 1 1/2 years ago the Building Department had three (3) Carpenter Inspectors and the Finance Director had an assistant, none of these positions are provided for in this Budget.

Councilmen Cantrell: Questioned publication costs provided in the Budget, and the possibility of reducing said costs.

Folmar: Responded that as City Clerk he felt that it was his responsibility to serve the public with the clearest picture of what is happening in this City, an obligation which he could not compromise.

Cantrell: Stated that Romulus publications usually filled 3/4 of a page (specifically the minutes), whereas other cities publications were much more condensed.

Folmar: Explained that if the City Council felt that the council minutes were too explanatory, there were actions which they could take, at the time of approval of the minutes, to condense them. Further, that he would use the upmost discretion in publishing the minutes, attempting to cut costs. A consensus by the City Council was taken regarding the deletion of the Public Information Officer position. Roll call vote for deletion of same from the 1980 81 Budget was as follows: Ayes - Raspberry, Cantrell, Rush, Nays - Yeramian, Block, Banks.

Councilmen Cantrell: Raised the question of whether CETA Employees would have bumping rights.

Mayor Oakley: Responded that the Union felt that they could not take a stand, until the City had acted.

Chairman Banks: Stated that she could not see how the City could possible absorb the CETA Employees.

Press' freedom safeguards yours

This nation has known many dissidents. In fact, those who gathered in Philadelphia in that year of 1787 to place their signatures on a document that would become the Constitution of the United States were themselves a "pack of rebels and traitors" who wrote seditiously against the King.

Moreover, when these same men finished the document, signed it and began patting themselves on the backs, they suddenly realized that there were no safeguards, no "rights" for the citizens, therefore they went back to the proverbial drawing board and designed what is known as the "Bill of Rights."

And right there on top of those rights the Fathers of the Constitution made it clear that they knew the importance of a free press. In the first of 10 amendments they stated that "...Congress shall make no law ... abridging the freedom ... of the press."

This week marks the annual observance of National Newspaper Week. Entitled "Our Freedom Safeguards Your Freedom," the fight for a free press has been a long and never-ending one. The courts are unmistakably making it clear to us in this business that they are forgetting what one of their very own, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis once wrote:

"The function of the press is very high. It is almost holy. It ought to serve as a forum for the people, through which the people may know freely what is going on. To misstate or suppress the news is a breach of trust."

There have been judges who would invade the inner sanctum of a newspaper office and raid it of a reporter's notes. It would trespass where it has, by law, been told it has no right unless there is a clear-cut violation of the law.

If we suppress the news and ideas, are we any better than a totalitarian state? Locking up a person's ideas and thoughts have never safeguarded a society and there is much historical evidence that once government begins to jail its dissidents it's downfall is near.

And, as our colleagues point out daily, "a free press cannot survive without the solid support of a free people, it is the people and not the courts who have the final say, by their actions at the polls, in which direction the nation, as a whole, will travel."

We will continue to provide all of the essential services to our communities — to accurately and honestly report, inform, teach, entertain, analyze and comment.

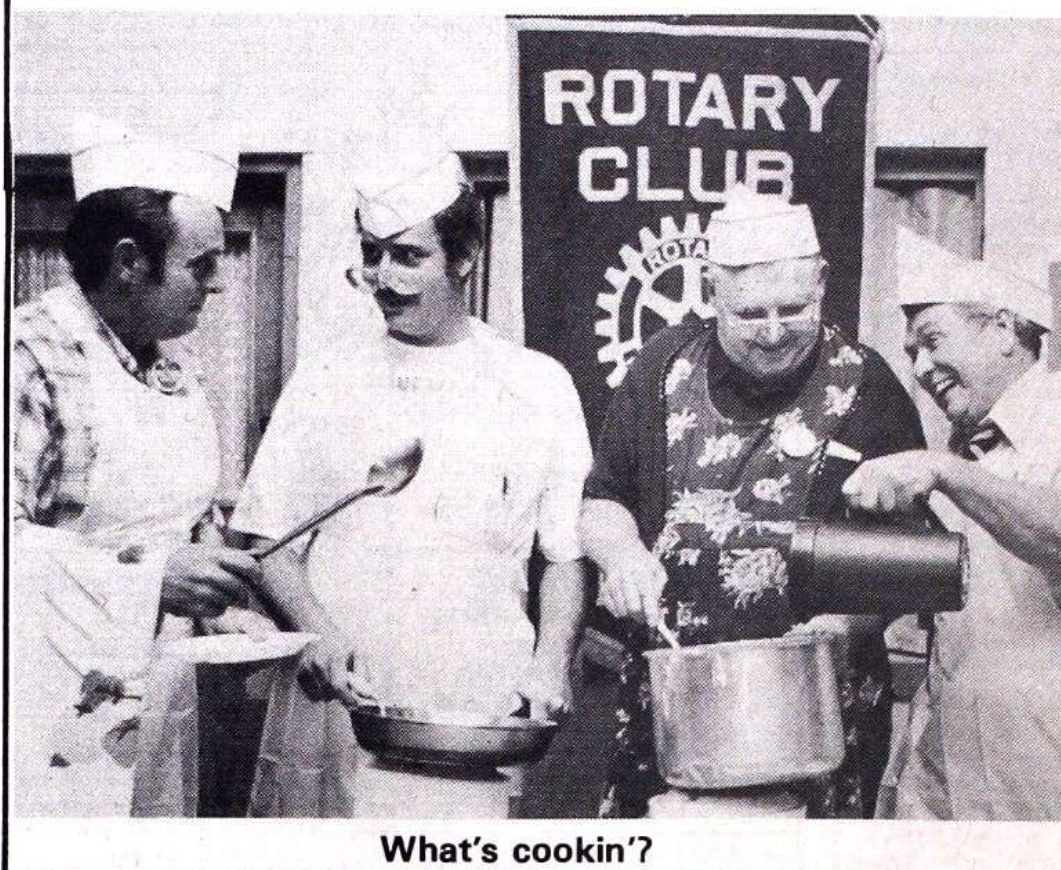

And we should never forget that "Our freedom safeguards your freedoms".

Why not use all of Romulus' potential?

By MIDGE PRYBYLA

With so much potential, why is Romulus such a pit? There are many reasons and everyone of them has a solution.

A number of people have tried to organize to promote community pride and community awareness. The problem was the number was few and as time went on it got fewer. Those who care get worn out by the negative attitudes of the rest. This attitude is contagious, it's like a cancer that eats through a community, destroying it. We need enough of the positive thinkers to beat the negatives.

In short, we need more community involvement by a larger number of people.

The administration, I feel, is no help in this at all. Most of the time when there is something going on that could boost attitudes toward the city the elected officials are too busy to attend.

Is council's job to attend three meetings a month and an occasional "Special Meeting" or is it supposed to be a link to the community, encouraging special interest groups and finding out what we really want for our community?

Instead of encouragement, it seems the citizens are made to feel that if the project doesn't originate in City Hall it isn't a very good idea. And, certainly not worth the time of the elected officials. Then, once in a while there is a positive project from city hall, and who shows up to encourage the people? One, two, and on a good day maybe three elected officials will honor us with an appearance.

Every group and every organization needs a leader or representative to one degree or another. We were made to understand at election time that these people wanted to be our leaders and our representatives. Not only a month before and a month after election, but during the rest of their term. We wanted someone whom we could take our ideas to, take our community problems to and someone to work to a positive goal, that being a better community.

These representatives we elected were supposed to be there for us as a community for their term of office, not three meetings a month and an occasional "special meeting", but to represent us in all community events or projects.

One council member is too busy digging up negatives about every person he comes in contact with to do anything positive for the city. A couple seem to be oblivious to everything around them and I fear at many council meetings they are going to fall asleep.

The Mayor doesn't support many projects that aren't his idea either. I have yet to hear a "Thank You" or "a job well done" come from his mouth. Yes, he does show up at more functions than the rest of the elected officials, but he's always standing back in a corner someplace never talking to very many people.

Yes, up to this point this letter too has been very negative. I am one of the gung-ho-positive ones that has tried, and tried, and tried along with many many good people in Romulus with great ambitions for our city and now I too am getting tired.

Being worn away by the bull — from city hall.

I guess the purpose of this letter is that I am reaching out to the people of Romulus, the elected officials, as well as the special interest groups and various organizations. We have a great little Village here. The Downtown Businessmen Organization is trying very hard to do its part for you.

The Chamber of Commerce is trying to raise the image of our city and many, many many good people are trying to make Romulus a better place to live in. We need to carry our positive attitudes so strong that we overcome the negative thinkers.

We have to tell our elected officials what we expect from them. If they can't handle the job, someone else can!

More people should be recognized for what they do and more should be told what they don't do that is expected of them.

During a council meeting this past year, there was an awards presentation being given to citizens in the community. During the part of the meeting, half of the council rudely got up and left, and when it was over they returned. Recognizing community involvement was obviously not as important as a cigarette in the hall. This is not an isolated incident, but typical of the attitudes from our elected officials.

Acting Managing Editor

He has a strong, unpretentious telephone voice. He says his destiny is to unseat heavily-favored U.S. Congressman William Ford in the 15th Congressional District. When one looks at the final primary tabulation — Ford received more than 23,000 votes; his challenger, Gerald Carlson, a mere 3,000 odd votes — you think to yourself: 'Carlson can't be serious.'

But Carlson, who admits he once was wooed by the local Nazi Party and the Klu Klux Klan and at one time spewed "white supremacy propaganda" via telephones, believes that since he survived the primaries, he is a "viable candidate."

"If there is anyone who can beat Ford, I can," Carlson said by telephone on Monday. "The white, middle class has been exploited enough — it's time to relieve them of the tax burden, of minority crime and criminals."

"It's time to hire people on merit and merit alone, and stop this preferential treatment of minorities," Carlson said.

No subtle man, Carlson said he is not flirting with political disaster when he advocates "white supremacy because the time has come to let the bureaucrats know where we stand."

Although he says that America has abandoned "its birthright to special interest groups," he says that the reason why his campaign has picked up momentum is because "I'm an independent."

Carlson believes his upset of the Republican candidate was due to his refusal to patronize political parties. "Do you know that the Republicans spent nearly $50,000 on Caygill's campaign, and do you know what I spent on mine — $180."

"I believe I won because I addressed myself to the issues."

And what are the issues, according to Carlson? Carlson repeated some of the current social maladies, painting apocalyptic days ahead for the whites if the prima donnas in Washington continue to pass legislation in favor of the minorities at the expense of the middle class, i.e., white middle class.

"I have been associated with the John Birch Society, and the American Independent Party and the National Socialist Party," Carlson pointed out, "but I feel that I have a greater chance of being elected if I run as an independent."

A Dearborn Fordson grad, Carlson says he graduated from the University of Michigan with a degree in political science. He said he also spent time in Germany and Sweden and speaks Russian fluently. He is self-employed as a private investigator.

Unweariedly he is staging a "door-to-door" campaign, he says, "because the Press is biased and controlled by big business. The only chance I have is going to the people and stating my case before each and every one of them."

"I've got the chance (to win)," Carlson reiterated, "because most of us are sick of what's going on in government today."

True. But I wonder, if people like Carlson should happen to win — what kind of government would we have?

Guest column

Van Buren - another viewpoint

By GEORGE ROBERTS
Candidate for
Van Buren
Township Supervisor

Last week in the Guest Column of this paper you read an article by our present Supervisor indicating that everything in Van Buren Township is just simply perfect. She obviously is not looking beyond her office windows or speaking with the residents of this township as I have. Let's take a closer look.

The first point she mentions is financial soundness which she attributes to "efficient, hardworking management". By comparison she cites the many communities on the verge of financial chaos. I ask you, the readers, how many townships have you been reading about that are on the verge of "financial chaos"? Pittsfield Township, on the other hand, is currently levying only 3.49 mills of the 5.00 mills they are entitled to levy as a Charter Township. Does this sound like "financial chaos"?

Next, she refers to the many Federal Grants we have obtained. It's true, we have received funds from the Federal Government, particularly for the dam project. However, it is also true the Federal Government was looking for a dam such as we had in our township so they could test the feasibility of converting such dams into hydro-electric plants to ease the consumption of imported oil. Should this project prove successful, many similar dams will be converted. It is also true that Van Buren employs a full time Grants Coordinator, whose singular job is to seek such funds available from the Federal Government.

One project she claims credit for is worthy of special mention. She proudly points out that we built a new fire station with Federal Funds. This is true. What she fails to mention is that the station built approximately three years ago still stands empty and unused on Tyler Road. It has never been used. While these Federal Funds may be a bonus to the township, let me remind you, they still come out of my pocket and yours. They come from our income tax payments. Can you imagine what your taxes would be if every township in the U.S. built a fire station it didn't use?

Citizen participation is the next topic she mentions. She indicates such participation is "needed, welcomed and appreciated". If that is the case, why is it that on nearly every subject mentioned, the public meeting was forced as the result of a petition submitted by the citizens?

There were petitions on both the landfill and the pedestrian bridge. On the questions of fishing off lake bridges and causeways, it was obvious the Township Board favored fishing, so the citizens forced the issue on the ballot and proceeded to vote it down 2-1.

She continues by discussing "future needs anticipated and acted upon". In this category she mentions senior citizens housing. This is particularly interesting because this subject has been raised from the floor at nearly every meeting in the last three months during the audience portion of the meeting. Even though there will be a question on the ballot on this topic, it is certainly not there as a result of the foresight of our supervisor or the Board. Ask the seniors in our community who are interested in their own housing, they'll tell you how much leadership has come from our officials on this subject.

Our tax base is the next topic she discusses. She claims she is responsible for "well-planned, balanced and orderly" growth. The growth cited shows we have grown from $127.7 million SEV (State Equalized Value) in 1977 to $170.9 million SEV in 1980. Considering the rate of inflation is 10-12 percent, have we had any real growth? Applying a flat 10 percent annual inflation rate, our SEV would be $170.1 million without any new growth. While some growth in the commercial sector has taken place, growth in the industrial sector has been minimal. Van Buren Township has prime industrial land available for industrial growth that would greatly improve our tax base. Such growth has been practically non-existent in the last four years. I believe such growth is essential and that I could bring it about, thereby easing the tax burden on our citizens.

In addition to the topics mentioned by our present Supervisor, there are many other aspects to the Supervisor's job that must be considered when judging the performance of the person holding that office. Let's look at some of these.

The general appearance and condition of our township is unquestionably the responsibility of our Supervisor and Board. Yet, people on Elwell Road have been trying for seven months to get something done about some abandoned houses they consider hazardous. People in the Ecorse Road-Belleview Road area have been complaining for years about the five acres of tires in open storage there. These tires serve as a breeding ground for mosquitos and a haven for rats. These people cannot believe that nothing could be done to correct the situation over such an extended period of time.

There are many other similar situations in our township. Abandoned buildings, unlicensed cars (junk), neglected yards, and other unsightly blight are becoming commonplace. All of these situations are covered by existing ordinances. But, these ordinances are either not enforced or enforced only at the discretion of someone in the township office. All too frequently, people tell me they were told to correct a situation, did, and then proceed to point out an even worse situation nearby that is not being corrected.

Again, they cannot understand why the ordinances are not being enforced equally, and neither can I.

Certainly part of the problem came to light at the August 29th meeting about the landfill. There were numerous complaints from citizens who had tried to contact the Supervisor to discuss their problems. The complaints ranged from her not being in, to her not calling back when people were told she would call back. It became perfectly clear to many people that Pat Cullen has placed herself above the people who elected her, that she has detached herself from her obligation of representing and serving the people of Van Buren Township.

I believe the people of Van Buren Township need and want a Supervisor who would be concerned with their problems and available to discuss matters that concern them. My promise to the people of Van Buren Township is to be that kind of Supervisor when elected.

Reporter biased?

EDITOR: Is your reporter so biased that he creates a situation out of no situation at all? Evidently he is. The article, "Landfill owner sets the record straight", was very lopsided and tilted toward Pat Cullin and her administration. It is obvious that reporter did little research to verify the material he printed. His statements are incorrect.

In the first place, the landfill owner should never have had to set the record straight. The group that visited the landfill didn't go there with the intentions of bargaining for action by the owner.

George Roberts was quoted in your editorial one week prior to the reporter's story as saying "The purpose of the visit was not to find fault with the operation, but to gain a better understanding of the problems, both from the standpoint of the operator and the citizens."

How could the reporter take a few statements in your editorial on page 7 and turn it into a front page story full of garbage, campaign statements and many untruths?

I believe the readers of your paper are intelligent and will be quick to notice, that actually, not one statement in the article, contradicted anything that was printed in your editorial the previous week.

This kind of reporting is totally irresponsible and not in keeping with the standards established by your newspaper. I certainly hope that if he is to write articles about

Van Buren Township in the future he will be more discerning and objective. The people of Van Buren deserve better reporting than this.

"They also deserve to know the truth".

When a reporter is deaf to the opposition's opinions, he is no longer a reporter applying the principles of the FIRST AMENDMENT, but rather, a "hand-picked mouthpiece."

Wayne needs new slogan

EDITOR: From one residents viewpoint about town. Well the third annual Wayne Mayor's Ball is over. And our Eagle Newspaper printed a flaw. Their advertisement said no political speeches. But it happened. The mayor made a political speech about President Carter visiting the Ford Motor Car Company, Wayne Plant. And the ball had political overtones. A great cross-section of Democratic Political persons were present.

Very few persons who work for the city was there, and only one former mayor. This is a poor showing for this event. That just proves how neighbors and us American people are divided in silly kid type beliefs. As for having a logo and seal for the City of Wayne, that reads the way it does. Wouldn't it be nice, if we could practice what it says. As a back up officer of this club, I would like to thank all those nice people who did show up. Thank you.

Now I'm going to express my views about the City of Wayne. Factions of this town keep it divided: North, south, east and west, you read a lot of persons saying Wayne has a problem, it does.

There is a solution, but it would take a lot of down to earth effort, this could come in the form of communications. And many person don't know how to do this. My political overtone, even though I started late in life is believing in history. It has past but the future hasn't yet. Many great people have had dreams of what and how they could straighten things out. Well maybe someday for our City of Wayne, we'll need some type of a magic word, it may not come easy, but we'll have to use it, to accomplish finding a durable solution. According to present time, Wayne Organizatins are on the road to erecting new Town Signs, and will maybe looking to a viable slogan, that could show what type of town Wayne really is. If we all come out of our shells a little more, and would put our differences on the back burner, or out like a fire. And act as United Americans, I would say then that I'd like to see Wayne's new concerned slogan be a united town, and the slogan be, "Togetherness is our solution." Or it would be a nice dream wording and advertising sign. Here is a part all of us residents could play. But it's up to all of us, to stop dreaming. And get out and take a part in the action.

Korean pen pals

EDITOR: I am an English teacher of the high school in Seoul, Korea. As an English teacher, I take this pleasure of writing to you on behalf of the students, because so many students here eagerly want to exchange letters with people in your country.

By exchanging letters, they will surely increase the knowledge about other countries and will enjoy exchanging information about students life, customs and other various topics between countries. And I also think they might have fun in swapping items of their hobby collections.

In this respect, I wish you would put this ardent wish of Korean young students in your esteemed paper, even so shortly only if your space may permit. But your more consideration will mean so much to the young hearts.

I am sure the boys and girls here will share warm fellowship for long. And I hope the people who wish to write to them will kindly write their names, ages, addresses and other information in their first letters. Then I will pass the letters to my compatible students, who are mainly 12 to 18.

I sincerely hope this could be something fruitful in the future and the young boys and girls have their cherished dreams come true by your help. May you help a good prosperity in the worthy business.

Sincerely yours,

Joyner fights appointments

EDITOR: I have written to the Wayne County Civil Service Commission and expressed my opposition to the appointment of one of its members to a newly created position of Assistant Director of Personnel Services at the Wayne County Road Commission.

In addition, I will not support the renomination of Henry Kozak to the Civil Service Commission, and I have asked the Wayne County Road Commission to terminate the appointment of Joan Petitpren.

Since my service on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, began, I have objected to the misuse and abuse of appointed positions. I will continue to fight against any County elected or appointed officials accepting higher paying, full-time positions within the County.

Further I am opposing one of our Wayne County Commissioners, Martha Scott, being appointed to fill the position of Joan Petitpren on the Civil Service Commission. We must start now to stop this constant inbreeding that can only do harm to the County.

I welcome any inquiries on this matter of appointment and cronyism and will continue to fight to see it ended.

Green, green

EDITOR: The Wayne Garden Club would like to thank the merchants on the new Michigan Ave. for taking such good care of the new grass in front of their stores.

The lovely green grass makes a very good impression on people passing through the city of Wayne and also makes the Waynites very proud.

The merchants are surely to be commended for their efforts in helping to keep the grass in such good condition.

We all send a big THANK YOU!

Ask Carol Premo

'Living together'... is it a sin?

By CAROL PREMO, PhD.

DEAR CAROL,

I am not writing to ask you any questions but to express some opinions for some hypocrites who couldn't think their way out of a paper bag.

I am sick and tired of people looking down on me and I want them off of my case. I am in my early thirties, well educated and living with a man with whom I share a beautiful life. We have been committed to each other for 6½ years and plan, God willing, always to be together.

What really irritates me is people acting as if we are living in sin when all that is missing is a stupid piece of paper from the State.

Since when has a government been set up as the moral judge? Can't people see that it is just a money making scheme set up by intellectually impoverished elected officials?

And what do people mean by marriage anyway? No one has ever approached me and said, "Oh my, you mean that you are caring, understanding, sharing, emotionally supportive and you're not married?"

No, its always "living together" and by that they mean sex. Sex — such a miniscule and insignificant aspect of any relationship when there is love.

Responsibility. I would prefer my loved one to be responsible to me and for me because he loves me rather than because the state makes him.

And what makes people think that it is more difficult to walk away from a state sanctioned marriage. Alimony isn't the last word in love. And if someone stayed with me because he couldn't afford to leave I wouldn't want it. That's not commitment!

I have made a commitment to my love in the name of God and do not need a third party to sanction it. Why do priests and ministers think that they have a higher rank with Him than I do?

God knows all and knows what is in the heart and doesn't need a theologian telling Him what is good or bad.

There! I have had my say. I don't know if you'll print this as you have let your religious views be known (not a good idea in my opinion) but I wanted people to know how I feel.

Committed and with God

DEAR COMMITTED,

You specifically did not ask for my opinion so I will not give it to you. Since you bring up some interesting points, perhaps some other readers would like to comment on them.

There is one question, however. If you are as sure of your views as you seem to be, why the angry tone of your letter? Just asking.

DEAR CAROL,

I have written to you about situations and conditions here in the township (Van Buren) and have never been answered. Why?

Waiting

DEAR WAITING,

When there is a strong political overtone to a letter or specific individuals are mentioned, I do not respond. That is not the purpose of this column. Those letters would be better sent to "Letters to the Editor."

Reflections

My old love...astrology

I am an astrology nut. Actually, I don't go to astrologers and pay a lot of money to have them draw up my charts, but what I do do is read the astrology column every morning in one of the metropolitan newspapers. And then every afternoon I read the astrology column in the other metropolitan newspaper. After that, I read the astrology column in the local weekly, as well as in most of the women's magazines and the Sunday papers.

You can see why I am confused. Take for instance the other day. Sitting at the breakfast table, with the sun shining in on the gleaming coffeepot, and the breadcrumbs and spilled jelly, I grabbed the section containing the horoscope from the head of the house and spread it out before me, propped against the sugar bowl. That is the best way to read your horoscope.

That particular morning my horoscope read that "an old love is going to pop up in your life. Unsettled matters will occupy your time."

I looked up at the only old love I could remember and thought about him popping in my life. I realized that that was asinine thinking, because how can an old love pop into one's life if he has never popped out? I mulled that thought around with my English Muffin, and then I tried to remember back, way back, before this old love.

Closing my eyes I chewed hard on my English Muffin, thinking, thinking ...

"What are you doing with your eyes closed and your mouth open chewing so hard?"

"I'm trying to remember a love before you."

"After me, there is no way you could remember anyone before," he said. Now, if he had said it in a romantic way, with his eyes slanting towards me with love and desire, I might have accepted his pronouncement and quit trying to make my horoscope come true. But there was that certain tone in his voice which made me think he was thinking more of his prowess than my desirability, and I became defiant.

"I'll think of someone," I muttered, and screwed my eyes tight and chomped on another English Muffin.

then sweep the bristles to the chewing surfaces and buff. A little flossing with dental floss once a day finishes the daily dental care by removing particles of food lodged between the teeth where the brush can't reach.

People who don't brush properly are in for some trouble, and while they won't necessarily lose all of their teeth, they could lose some. You see, bacteria in the dental plaque act upon the sugar in our food and create acid.

If the plaque is not removed with frequent brushing or by the dentist, tartar forms, bringing on real problems.

You know how hard the tartar is to remove by the dentists' scraping it off with a metal pick. If the tartar continues to accumulate without dental care, we can develop a condition known as pyorrhea, which causes inflammation and disintegration of the tissue and bone, and then our teeth become loose and do fall out. This is where the little old man used to come in.

Now, however, people are wiser. With good care that laughing baby could eventually become the old man with beautiful teeth—and that's a myth we'd like to perpetuate.

House Call

How to keep your teeth

By MAURICE B. REIZEN, M.D.
Department of Public Health

Sometimes we perpetuate a myth. Like saying a laughing toothless baby looks like a little old man. When did you last see a toothless little old man? They're almost extinct, thanks to good dental care. There just aren't many toothless old men (or women) any more, and our laughing baby looks like a laughing baby.

That's good; and the reason for the lack of toothless old men these days is the emphasis on good dental care. We know that when baby's first teeth appear, they're important, because they maintain space for the permanent teeth and guide them into position.

We know about topical fluoride clinics for youngsters and about fluoridated water to help reduce cavities in children's teeth.

We know, too, about brushing. Once we might have preferred a hard bristle brush, but now the recommended brush has soft bristles. It's less harmful to the gums, when we vibrate the bristles in tiny circles at the gumline and

Life in the slow lane

Listening with a deaf ear

By MONA GRIGG

My grandmother used to call it "listening with a deaf ear". You looked like you were listening — you even listened like you were listening — but in truth a whole other conversation was going on in your head.

Usually the whole other conversation was what you were going to say as soon as there was a pause you could pounce on. Sometimes, though, you listened with a deaf ear because you had already made your mind up about the argument being given and you didn't want to muddy it up with more information.

I only bring this up because there seems to be a lot of listening with deaf ears going on in our town these days...and a lot of it is going on at City Hall. And it's hard to tell who's doing the non-listening. It could even be both sides....

Some of the confusion comes about because there are two groups fighting paving issues. One group wants the paving it doesn't have but is paying for and the other group doesn't want to pay for the paving it's going to get. At least that's the way I understand it.

First, there's the Globe Street Group (They're the ones who want the paving they're paying for). Caroline Wood (one of the leaders of the protest group who attacked (albeit verbally) poor, unsuspecting mayoral assistant, Andy Spisak), played surrogate grandmother to our youngest daughter several years ago, who I went to work in an office. Caroline and her husband, Johnny, wrapped their loving arms around that child and made her one of their own...but that's another story. The thing is, from a purely subjective point of view, I have a hard time placing Caroline and her good neighbors in Andy's office, literally threatening his very life and limb.

On the other hand, I have a hard time imagining that Andy would be so foolish as to actually lose control and shout obscenities at his boss's constituents....

Still, I've seen rage, born of frustration, at work. It's not a pretty sight. But if the Globe Street Group actually are paying for paving that hasn't happened yet, wouldn't they, by anybody's standards, have a legitimate gripe?

Why would it take a shouting match to come up with a solution? Couldn't the payments simply be suspended until the paving was completed? Who was listening with deaf ears?

And what about the other group? The WHOAPP's? (The Westland Home Owners Against Paving Program 1980) The ones who don't want their streets paved? Do they, in fact, represent their whole area? And if they do, what has happened in the council chambers since the time they threw out practically the entire paving program?

Not so long ago, in a most admirable way, at a council session that seemed like Christmas, the members of city council deleted, one by one, all those streets or areas that came up with petitions signed by 51 percent or more of the residents. What made it even more festive was the fact that several of those areas were deleted even though the percentage of lineal feet far surpassed the percentage of dissident residents.

You see, that's what makes it bad. Some of the members of the newly-formed WHOAPP group were there that Christmas-in-Spring, and now they're having a hard time understanding why they were singled out when everyone else got off, so to speak.

And they're having a hard time figuring out why, all of a sudden, council is being so nit-picky about lineal feet or even proper signatures when the last time they dismissed all of that with a good-natured wave and a hearty Ho-Ho-Ho.

They're having a hard time understanding what makes an emotional issue bad when it involves a 76-year-old man faced with the prospect of having to shell out $13,000, no matter how the Easy-Payments are divided up.

They're having an even harder time (especially in these hard times) swallowing the edict that since it is good for you and you will save money in the long run and since you persist in balking, we, who know what's good for you, will just have to make the decision for you.

The hard part is that there are some in that group who know for a fact that a new car would be good for them — or an added on bedroom would be good for them — or even a trip to Tahiti would be good for them — and who know, also, that if they wait too long, the prices on all of those good-for-you things will surely go up — but who know, too, that there's no way on God's green earth they can afford them, so forget it.

And it's especially hard for some people to accept having someone tell them what's good for them when that someone isn't planning on footing the bill. It's not only hard — it's downright frustrating.

And when people become too frustrated trying to come up with answers, they soon become enraged. That's when words like "fraud" and "favoritism" and "recall" are bandied about. And when formerly friendly, even out-of-the-way council members are threatened with recall, someone has to realize it isn't just a whim anymore. Someone is trying to tell someone something.

And they want them to listen with hearing ears.

There are four factors that affect successful and consistent film development. Time, temperature, agitation and chemical activity being the last important factor.

In order to keep consistent results using recommended developing procedures, you must use systematic agitation of the film during development.

The system or agitation will vary from film to film. That is, the method of agitating cut film will be different than roll film. Agitation, however, is necessary during the development of any film.

CAN YOU LOSE 29 POUNDS IN 3 WEEKS?

I still can't really believe it! I've tried all the fad diets and nothing seemed to work. I thought I always had to be heavy, but you really changed my lifestyle. I lost 29 pounds in just 3 short weeks and feel terrific. Thank you, Holistic, you are the best!

HAD ONE TOO MANY?

YES, but I sold it in the Want Ads.

Yes, I had one too many, but I sold the extra one through the quick-action Want Ads.

Brandy and Snifter were both great St. Bernards, but two is too many. Found Brandy a great home in a mountain winery. Those Want Ads are read everywhere.

If you have one too many of any useful item, a Want Ad can find it a new home and fill your wallet with some of that government lettuce.

Clean out those storage areas, it's a good New Year's Resolution, and those still valuable items like toys, bikes, appliances, sewing machines, typewriters, musical instruments, and the like, will be welcomed by someone.

Rock and roll beat hits area nightspots

By JOHN SPELICH
Special to Playtime

Two Ann Arbor nightspots recently were privileged to present some of the best rock and roll to hit the area this year. Second Chance hosted the Kingbees, with special guest, The Look, for two performances.

The next day, due to a cancellation in Toledo, the Kingbees were asked to be the special guests along with the Steve Nardella Band at Rick's American Cafe.

The Look

The Look is showing signs that it is ready to break away from "special guest" status and become a headline act.

The band made quite an impression when it opened for the Kingbees in Ann Arbor. Usually, opening acts are shrugged off by the audience because of the anticipation of the main act. This was not the case with The Look.

Almost immediately the audience began to gyrate to the music. The band ran through a couple of cover versions of old favorites, then plunged into their original material. Two songs, "Do Ya Want To?" and "We're Gonna Rock, How 'Bout You?", were easily recognizable due to their repeated airplay on Detroit rock radio stations this year.

The Look's onstage show is captivating. Vocalist Dave Edwards, looking like a cross between Mick Jagger and Rod Stewart, commands attention with his constant movement. Drummer John Sarkisian lays down the beat which allows bassist Rich Cochran and guitarists Sam Warren and Randy Volin to power out their explosive brand of rock and roll.

Just before coming to the Second Chance, The Look concluded an East Coast tour. The trip was fruitful, stated Volin, because the band, in addition to being well received in New York City, firmed up plans to produce their first album, due out in early '81. Volin wouldn't disclose any labels.

The Look has enjoyed the pleasure of backing up some of the biggest names in the business. The group has opened for J. Geils, The Rockets, Montrose, and John Cougar. In 1976, the band opened for Mitch Ryder's comeback appearance at the Second Chance.

Volin has high hopes for the band. "We want to tour everywhere. Even Japan!" With the talent exhibited that evening, they just might.

Steve Nardella Band

It was supposed to be Steve Nardella's night. He and his band were supposed to headline the evening at Rick's American Cafe.

When it was announced the Kingbees were added to the show, it seemed the Steve Nardella Band was demoted to an "opening act" status, even though they opened and closed the show with the Kingbees playing the middle set.

If there was any resentment involved, Nardella hid it well. However, his performance was only sub-par. The usual energy which emanates from Nardella himself was absent. On a normal evening, he can be seen shaking uncontrollably during the songs, and dancing wildly during the instrumental riffs. On this night, Nardella stood stiff and silent. It was as though he had lost interest in the whole affair.

The musical part of the show was better than average. Nardella could have been more enthusiastic on the vocals. Guitarist George Bedard, stand-up bassist Ted Harley, pianist Mark "Mr. B." Brown, and drummer Andy Conlin did a fantastic job covering many of the "Rockabilly" hits of the 50's and 60's.

As a personal note, having seen the band numerous times, they could have done better, and will in the near future.

The Kingbees

What this group didn't do at Second Chance, they made up for at Rick's. The show at Second Chance was musically fine (with the exception of ten minutes of technical difficulty with Jamie James' guitar), but wasn't as energetic as usual. The group sounded only as good as their hit record, simply entitled, "The Kingbees."

At Rick's the show was much better.

Fishing Lines

By BOB SAWITSKI

Vertical jigging is effective technique

If you haven't yet winterized your outboard motor, or if you own a rowboat and a good set of oars, you can still get in on some pretty good bass fishing before the water freezes.

But late autumn is the time for some mighty unorthodox fishing methods. Vertical jigging is one of these techniques.

Vertical jigging is just what the name implies—dropping a lure straight down from the boat until it hits bottom, letting it rest for a few seconds, then giving your rod tip an upward thrust. Let the lure settle back down on the bottom on a tight line, and repeat.

But there's more to it than just that. Your rod must be stiff enough to adequately handle the heavy lures that are appropriate for this type of fishing. It also must be sensitive enough to detect even the slightest pickup by bass, which don't strike in cold water with the fury that the species is famous for. The cold temperature has caused a reduction in their metabolism, which means they don't move around much. Their reaction time is much slower than in the summer.

This is why this method is so effective late in the season.

You'll want to use lures that are heavy enough to get right down to the bottom fast so no time is wasted. Special jigging spoons that weigh at least a half ounce are good choices, as are heavy tailspinners and large leadhead jigs. Whatever you select, it'll be twice as deadly if you dress it with a pork rind strip.

Heavy lures and stiff rods only naturally dictate the importance of heavy line. If the line is too light, the strain placed upon it by the rod, lure and big fish will cause it to snap like thread.

Add to your outfit a reel with enough capacity for upwards of 20-pound test monofilament, and you're ready to go vertical jigging. My choice of line is mono, but other fishermen prefer braided line for vertical jigging because it doesn't stretch as much.

Now, where do you go? Stay away from large lakes at this time of year. Although bass tend to school late in the fall and do not move around much, they could be anywhere in a sprawling body of water. All that water is just too confusing.

I like to concentrate on lakes no bigger than 200 acres. In a lake like this, there may be only two or three areas that will hold bass in cold weather. You stand a much better chance of finding fish under these circumstances.

Check your depthfinder for underwater ledges, points or isolated structure in water anywhere from 20 to 35 feet deep. Finding structure is imperative late in the season. Once you've located likely-looking structure, toss out a few markers and concentrate all your efforts on that area. Don't be too anxious to change spots. If you don't catch a fish after an hour or so, move either a little deeper or shallower. Don't stay at the same depth.

Be especially alert for a strike as your lure is falling back to the bottom after jigging it. The fish will be few and far between, but the bass you do catch will be keeper size.
